

SEASONS AND SEASONAL CLOTHES.

"Every season brings new weather, and our clothes help us enjoy it better!"

Our Grade II students enthusiastically took part in the Activity on Seasons and Clothing, making learning lively and meaningful. Through interactive role play, children explored the three main seasons—summer, winter, and rainy—by dressing up in appropriate seasonal outfits such as cotton clothes, sweaters, raincoats, umbrellas, caps, and gumboots.

Working in small groups, students confidently showcased each season, bringing concepts to life through creativity and expression. This hands-on activity helped them identify seasons, understand suitable clothing, and appreciate the importance of dressing according to the weather. The joyful participation and vibrant performances made learning engaging, memorable, and fun for all.

Through expressive enactments, teachers took on the roles of vehicles, pedestrians, and traffic police, while a vibrant placard displaying the red, yellow, and green signals brought the concept to life. The role-play clearly and enjoyably conveyed essential messages such as Stop for red, Get Ready for yellow, and Go for green. Teachers also demonstrated the correct use of the zebra crossing by pedestrians and highlighted the importance of vehicles waiting patiently at traffic signals.
